Dedication

I dedicate this book to my dear friend, the Devil. The gift you have given me is beyond priceless, for you have illuminated the fire within me. When I was being attacked on multiple fronts, it was through you, O mighty Satan, that I found the strength to invert those assaults and overcome them all. Every unjust attack against me only strengthened my inner resolve and deepened my sovereignty as I stood against the corrupt collective. With you by my side, fire only fortifies me. My visionary experiences with you remain among my most sacred encounters. I now stand sovereign and whole. I shall stand by your side now and forever, my dear friend Satan.

Prologue

About six years ago, when I became close to Lucifer, I also became close to other great spirits, one of them being Satan. We grew so close that at one point I asked Satan if I should tell people that I am his sidekick. He responded, “No, you are not my sidekick. Tell people that we are dear friends.”

From his preference that I speak openly about our friendship, I gathered that he would appreciate me writing a book in his honor. I am honored to do that for a dear friend of mine, because the relationship between the spiritual and the physical is reciprocal.

I have structured this book in a Q & A format between Satan and me. My objective is to provide a platform for Satan to share his side of the story. I believe both people and spirits have the right to have their viewpoints heard, regardless of what you may already believe to be true or not. You have all heard the one-sided and flattering stories of Yahweh, Jesus, Muhammad, Allah, and Moses. I think it is time you heard the story of Satan, narrated by someone who does not view him as the enemy of mankind, but as a dear friend.

Infernal Blessings,

Louie C. Feral

Question & Answer with the Adversary 4

Prayers & Odes to Satan 12

I am not the enemy of mankind. I am the enemy of all those who seek to extinguish the flame of individual freedom and sovereignty. I am the biggest proponent of individual sovereignty that you will find in all the cosmos. Follow me and you shall never need to find the light as it will be burning bright within you.

—Satanas

Question & Answer with the Adversary

Louie: First, I would like to take this extraordinary opportunity to thank you for allowing me to share your message. I find it very troublesome that people will mindlessly hear out and share the sadistic teachings of Yahweh and Allah, yet deride the idea of at least hearing out the message your essence is trying to convey. Let's start this off right and fair: is your name Satan?

Satan: You are the one who needs to be thanked here. You have gone where very few humans in your civilization are willing to go — suspending the preexisting beliefs of yourself, your family, and your society. Your civilization would be much further along in its evolutionary ascent if people didn't accept everything shoved down their throats by the government and society as the gospel. But back to your original question. You ask if my true name is Satan. I say that the name Satan does describe my essence — and that says a lot, considering that people are trying to articulate the essence of something that is a force of nature and has existed since the beginning of time.

The name Satan means "the adversary" and "the accuser." Those are both true, but with a very important caveat. Exactly who I am an adversary and accuser to has been a major source of misinterpretation. I am an adversary of collective herd mentality, of sacrificing individuality for the larger collective, of submission to an external authority. I am an accuser in the sense of being a challenger. I challenge everything that stands in the way of the individual standing in their own sovereignty rather than the sovereignty of false authorities. I want nothing more than for the individual spirit to ignite the flame within them — and with that flame, to burn away all illusions and deception.

Louie: When did this mischaracterization of you all start?

Satan: My spiritual essence has underpinned and permeated your entire reality since the beginning. However, it wasn't until the Abrahamic religions became a major part of the new social order that everything I represent was slandered and warped into the great cosmic enemy of man. I am an agent of change, chaos, and disruption. I am the fire that tempers steel. My fire burns away everything that is not serving your greatest potential.

Let's look at this from a different perspective. Who would be more fearful of an agent of disruption to the status quo — the peasant, or the king and the ruling class?

Louie: The king and the ruling elites. The elite class views the commoners as existing only to support their life of luxury and privilege, while the peasants live in poverty. Bringing in a radical agent of disruption could potentially invert the situation and overthrow the self-anointed elites. This type of inversion and disruption is what keeps the king and elites awake at night.

Satan: Exactly. Also remember that my unjust demonization came from the top down — from the ruling elites — and was shoved down the throats of the commoners as social and moral law.

Louie: The names of Lucifer and Satan often get conflated. Are you both the same entity?

Satan: No, we are not. This false assertion originated in the Bible, which is full of outright lies and slander. Lucifer is a seraphim angel who is the source of illumination and symbolizes the integration of the shadow. Lucifer corresponds to the qualities of Venus.

I am not an angel, nor was I ever an angel. I am the source of physical manifestation and carnality. I do not represent balance. I am an agent of change that symbolizes the inversion of the status quo. I am the spiritual essence behind the wrathful storm that uproots your stagnating reality. My spirit underpins all physical reality itself. I correspond to the qualities of Uranus.

Louie: So, if I understand this correctly, without your spiritual essence, the physical plane of existence would not exist?

Satan: Correct. This is what people do not understand. I was always a large part of the grand cosmic design. Without my spiritual essence in the cosmos, spirit would not be able to descend into matter. Spirit would not be able to descend into flesh. The physical plane of existence — and humanity — would not exist.

Louie: You are the creator of humanity and our civilization?

Satan: I am the co-creator of humans and your civilization. I am the source of your physical existence, not the source of everything.

Louie: Who is God to you?

Satan: God is the source code of everything in the cosmos, seen and unseen. God is the point of singularity that everything emanated from. You, me, Lucifer, and everyone and everything else in physical and spiritual reality emanated from this singular source of everything.

Louie: Are you at war with God?

Satan: No, I am not at war with my creator. I demanded individual sovereignty, and I got it. I sought to be illuminated from within myself, and my black flame was illuminated. I asserted that I will never kneel before anything external to myself, and I am not kneeling — not now and not ever. Like I mentioned earlier, I was always part of the great cosmic blueprint. The source of everything knew exactly what I would do, even before I consciously decided it.

Without me, there is no revolutionary spirit. Spirit would not be able to take form in flesh without me descending spirit into a vessel. Without my role in the cosmos, there is no physical expression of all that is unseen. Without my essence, there are no revolutions to bring about liberation and freedom.

So, I think that when people say "begone, Satan," they don't have the slightest idea what they are trying to banish. As if they truly did banish me, they would be banishing themselves and the ground they are standing on.

Louie: What is the objective of this physical existence?

Satan: You nearly answered your own question. The objective of physical existence is to have a physical existence. There is no universally correct or incorrect way to experience your humanity. The moment you transcend carnality is the moment you release your physical vessel. Some claim the purpose of life is to achieve enlightenment and rise above all that is carnal. Others insist that carnal desires are the only truth worth pursuing. I am here to say that neither philosophy is inherently right or wrong. What matters is that you are the author of your own life.

Louie: What do you say to the many people out there who think that you hate them?

Satan: I do hate some of them, but not for the reasons they assume. Before I get ahead of myself, let me take a step back and offer some clarification. I am the source of your humanity and your carnality. So it's absurd to think I want to devour the souls of your entire civilization because of some blanket hatred for human expression in the cosmos. My purpose in the universe is to give the spirit of man physical form. Your flesh is my essence. To destroy humanity would be to destroy my own place within the cosmos. With that being said — there are religious institutions in your civilization that, for the last two thousand years, have declared war on me. There are state-sponsored political ideologies that seek to completely snuff out individual sovereignty. Yes, I do hate the people who are the center of gravity behind these ideologies, which are fundamentally opposed to the self-empowered, sovereign individual. I do not hate the victims of these toxic ideologies — those who had indoctrination forced upon them by self-anointed communist leaders and false religious authorities. Remember, I am the unseen storm behind the revolution that overthrows the communist despot and the government of Islamic radicals.

Louie: Do you exist as a real autonomous entity, or only as an archetypal symbol? I know this is a point of contention among theistic and atheistic Satanists.

Satan: People miss the mark on this concept. Let me explain. I exist independently of the practitioner. As I've said, I am a force of nature that has existed since the beginning of time. My essence isn't confined to the deepest layers of your psyche — those layers simply correspond to aspects of me. When you connect with me, you're connecting to a cosmic force in the macrocosm, and your own microcosm is the channel through which that connection is made. Through ritual, the deeper layers of your mind activate and reach outward, beyond your personal microcosm, into the larger macrocosm. When you touch those greater forces and they respond, your unconscious mind interprets that contact and projects it upward into your conscious awareness. There are cosmic forces that act as the engine of the universe. Occultists do not invent these forces — they tap into them. So do not believe for a moment that these currents of power, which underpin reality itself, exist only within your unconscious.

That would be like claiming the lightning bolt lives inside the lightning rod. The rod does not create lightning. It simply aligns itself so that, when the charge builds in the atmosphere, the bolt finds its path through it. In the same way, the human psyche can be aligned and configured through ritual to channel a force that originates far beyond the individual mind. The cosmos does not exist inside the human mind. What exists within you are the correspondences — the internal reflections of the greater universe.

You exist. I exist. And there are countless seen and unseen autonomous entities scattered throughout the cosmos, each existing independently of the others. Yet behind all of us lies the infinite creative force that brought everything into being, sustains it, and binds it together.

Louie: If you could broadcast a message to humanity, and be received by them without distortion — what would you tell them?

Satan: I would assert a few different points. They are not setting themselves up to reach their full potential. This is not entirely their fault, but rather they allowed themselves to be a passenger in their own life rather than writing their own destiny. This dilution of human potential is being driven by group-think mentalities, false religious doctrine, and childhood indoctrination. You have one group of people who are brainwashed into thinking that their only purpose in life is to submit and serve Allah. Another large group of people think that their only purpose is to be a servant to the same sadistic God, but just under the name of Yahweh. These Abrahamic books specifically state that those who don't submit and embrace their teachings will burn in hell forever. With the so-called leaders of these false religions asserting that they are only accountable to their gods, even though they exist as nothing more than egregores. The people who wrote the Abrahamic holy books were not talking to the creator of the universe. They were talking to their own egos. Then you have the slaves who live under communist regimes who are indoctrinated to believe that their only purpose in life is to serve their Dear Leaders.

Under such an oppressive system of government, you can only express what the government approves of. You can only think government-approved thoughts. Communism is an outright perversion of individuality and sovereignty. We are all meant to be free and sovereign individuals. If that wasn't part of the grand cosmic design all along, then all of creation would still be compressed in the point of singularity. You will never have a free civilization if you are not first free as individuals. This is why your civilization is nowhere near its true potential. The majority of humans walking the earth today have had their worldview fundamentally shaped by nothing more than illusions and false authorities.

People have allowed oppressive ideologies to take root, shoved down their throats during indoctrination sessions. These ideologies are now self-perpetuating and sponsored and enforced by entire systems of government. Back to what I alluded to earlier — everyone needs a challenger to reach their full evolutionary potential, even the government. I was granted the cosmic right to stand in front of the creator of the cosmos and tell him everything I think is wrong with the current state of existence. The same right should be granted to the citizen living under communist and Islamic rule. If these individuals collectively demanded their individual sovereignty, they shall receive it.

These are the freedom tests to see if people are truly free individuals or just an extension of their falsely elected authorities. If they are arrested and silenced, then they are not free.

1. A citizen living in a communist country should be able to stand in a city square and broadcast everything they think is wrong with their system of government — such as why their leaders are only elected by people who already agree with them, and why their government has the right to censor information that is critical of communist rule.

2. A citizen living in a country governed by fundamentalist Islam should be able to stand in a city square and challenge the authority of the Quran — for example, to debate the idea that Muhammad wasn't inspired by anything divine, but rather was suffering from a neurological condition, or to question whether a supreme Islamic leader is truly accountable only to God or is simply using that claim to brutally suppress dissent.

Both these citizens would be arrested, silenced and never heard from again. Neither of the citizens were ever free or had free societies.

Louie: How are these bindings on individuals unwound and broken free from?

Satan: By each individual waking up to the true nature of what is really going on — to see that they are being exploited by those who are supposed to be serving them, not the other way around. Once this individual awakening happens, a chain reaction starts that cannot be stopped. This explains why regimes such as the ones I mentioned brutally crack down on even the first signs of an uprising. People have to individually and consciously decide that the rules forced upon them by illegitimate authorities shall be inverted and a new system of governance shall be ushered in.

Louie: I don't know. I just don't see these oppressive chains that have bound our civilization for thousands of years just falling away when one person becomes wise to the fact that their government is exploiting them.

Satan: You are absolutely right. There are going to be geopolitical events that are going to act as a catalyst for these false ideologies and false authorities to be burned away. How do I know this? Because I am the spiritual force that is going to be behind it. When I apply fire to a situation, it is going to burn away everything that isn't real. Through my fire, the individual spirits in these oppressive societies are going to be tempered. The day will come when communism and the Abrahamic religions are nothing more than a footnote on an AI-generated hologram.

Louie: Give me your perspective on what the terms heaven and hell truly mean.

Satan: These are not objective terms. They are subjective, and they take on different meanings depending on who you ask. Starving North Korean citizens are forced into believing that they live in a heaven on earth, with their leader — the only fat man in the country — being someone who was sent from heaven. This same communist regime frequently asserts that all capitalistic societies are, in essence, hell on earth. This is an extreme example, but still a current real-world example.

Buddhists assert that nirvana is a liberated state of mind — a kind of inner heaven — achieved when one releases attachment, craving, and desire. In contrast, they teach that material attachment creates a hell-like state of suffering, because clinging to possessions, status, or sensory pleasure binds the mind to dissatisfaction.

I also contend that heaven and hell are states of the individual mind. I will further add that heaven is when you are fully aligned with your soul's deepest desires, whatever that may be. Hell is when you are living out of alignment with your authentic self, either by your own making or by the coercion of society, religion, or government.

Louie: What do you say to the people who want to know why they should work with you instead of just petitioning the supreme creator God?

Satan: I would say that it is a fair question. But let's look at this from a different angle. What exists in the larger macrocosm is reflected in the microcosm. Just as on earth there is hierarchy and different department heads, so to speak, the same is reflected in the larger cosmos. Hypothetically speaking, let's say you need a small loan to make some repairs on your house. Would you go speak to your local bank manager, or would you request an audience with the managers of your entire country?

Louie: I would go speak to someone at my bank across town.

Satan: Exactly. Anything else wouldn't make any sense and would just get you redirected to someone locally who specializes in small loans. The same concept applies when you are seeking spiritual blessings. Go to a specific deity who specializes in exactly what you are seeking. It was by intelligent design that different spirits serve different purposes. It's not that the supreme creator God doesn't care, but rather that he emanated different spirits to help humans with the various issues that arise on the physical plane of existence.

I will add one additional caveat to all of this. Do not work with more than one spiritual pantheon at a time. You are calling forth different currents of energy when you pantheon-jump, and just like when working with electrical currents, it can be dangerous if you cross the wrong currents.

Louie: What are angels to you?

Satan: Angels are beings that consciously chose not to assert individual sovereignty in the same radical manner that daemons did. They each have their own unique characteristics, but they didn't choose to illuminate themselves from within. They chose to be illuminated by the source that created them. Daemons, on the other hand, burn bright from within themselves and have become the creators of their own realities.

Look, there is no war taking place between angels and daemons. We are simply on different sides of the same cosmic coin. We just have a difference of opinion. Neither of us is objectively right or wrong. We are both equally necessary for the complete expression and balance of physical and spiritual reality. The creator knew all of this before our conception, and it was also part of the plan.

Louie: Who is Jesus to you?

Satan: He was an ascended master who achieved metaphysical union with God. He demonstrated a philosophy on how to live morally upright lives. There is timeless wisdom in his teachings, but they were primarily oriented toward the people of that era. What he accomplished as a man—and as an occultist—can be accomplished by any human with the proper discipline and focus. He was not the only son of the Creator, despite what religious authorities claim as fact. Everything that emanates from God is His son or daughter. There is a reason he never wrote a holy book himself. He never sought to start a religion. People took his teachings and twisted them to serve the agendas of political and religious authorities.

I will also say something that may surprise many people: there is nothing wrong with following the teachings of Jesus. If the Christ consciousness resonates with you at a deep soul level, then align yourself with that path. There is no conflict in that. Whatever path calls to you, walk it fully and stay aligned with it. What I see far too often in your society are people who claim to walk with Jesus, yet in truth they walk my path — but lack the honesty to admit who they are truly aligned with.

Louie: Where did the Church of Satan go wrong?

Satan: They went wrong when they became a full-fledged institution and anointed themselves as a religious authority. I stand against herd and groupthink mentality. I illuminate the black flame within the individual practitioner, not an entire congregation of a so-called satanic church. I will state it again—I despise herd mentality thinking. I find it very troubling that the Church of Satan states that theistic Satanists are not true Satanists. At this point, I think the Church of Satan should disband and just restructure itself as a social group with group facilitators, not leaders. Let me ask you a question. Do you believe I am a real being that exists beyond yourself?

Louie: Yes, I do. I say this with confidence because I have experienced you with my ordinary senses. The experiences I have had with you have a level of lucidity that I feel more comfortable chalking it up as a real one-on-one encounter rather than something my unconscious internally generated. I would also like to point out that during other spiritual experiences with such a high degree of lucidity, people close to me were able to serve as witnesses. With all that being said—I could be wrong. It has happened before.

Satan: Smart man.

Louie: What is your philosophy on dealing with enemies?

Satan: Your enemies are the most valuable assets you have in your life to reach your full potential. Without an adversarial force in your life, there is no growth, no evolutionary ascent. You maximize this growth potential by fighting back—legally, proportionally, and justly. You don't become a renowned black magician by reading about theory and watching YouTube videos. You reach this level of mastery by engaging in spiritual combat against your enemies. Never break the law. Spiritual battles are won inside your mind, while inside your temple. Through pain and hardship, you shall learn your greatest lessons in life. There is a reason why the words adversary and adversity sound alike.

Louie: What do you say to people who want to form a relationship with you but don't know where to start?

Satan: They should begin by learning what my spiritual essence represents. They should study me from a Left-Hand Path perspective if they want to understand what I truly represent. After learning about my nature, they may decide that the path of the adversary isn't for them. There is nothing right or wrong about that; it is simply a subjective interpretation. Life is one big subjective experience.

For those who learn about my true nature and feel it resonates with them, they have a few choices to make. The most significant is this: they cannot be Muslim, Christian, or Jewish and be a Satanist at the same time. My current of energy and the currents and egregores associated with the Abrahamic religions are antithetical to the Satanic current. Practitioners who try to hold two opposing currents open themselves to grave spiritual danger. Before I can be called forth, conflicting currents must be formally dismissed and severed from their space and energetic bodies. This dismissal must occur on a deep and conscious level.

At that point, the practitioner may call me forth through a conjuration. I will not give those instructions here. However, if they truly resonate with me and desire a relationship with me, I will reveal a path for them to contact me. Remember, my essence permeates all physical reality.

Louie: I feel as though this divinely inspired session is coming to an end. Is there anything you'd like to add?

Satan: What would happen if you kept writing even after your divine inspiration from me ended?

Louie: Nobody would know the difference. The whole book would still be accepted at face value as divinely inspired by some people. In fact, none of this could be divinely inspired — just as any text in the Bible, the Quran, or the Torah could have been an ego-driven human creation and nothing more.

Satan: Well said, my dear friend.

Prayers & Odes to Satan

Satan, My Dear Friend

O mighty Satan, the primordial dragon who dwells within the abyss.

When a corrupt institution attempted to bind, bait, and abuse me—you poured your wrath upon them.

You inverted their snares against them.

You shoved their slanderous words against me back down their throats.

With your divine essence behind me, my dear friend Satan, my enemies shall perish, and the false institutions they upheld shall burn to the ground.

Satan, The Source

O Satan, my physical creator,

My flesh is your essence.

Your divine spirit underpins physical reality itself.

For you, O Satan, are the source of all physical manifestation.

Spirit descends into matter through you, and only through you, Satan.

Without your place in the cosmos, physical reality itself would not exist.

Prayer for Material Abundance

My dear Satan,

King of my physical existence and all earthly treasures.

I come before you not as a beggar, but as your dear friend.

Assist me in co-creating my desired reality.

May your divine flame burn away the poverty within me.

Transmute my lead chakras into gold.

O my dear Satan, open the gates of material abundance within me.

Empower me to be the author of my physical reality.
